

National centre for family and whānau violence research and information

Pānui | Newsletter - Issue 106 - Oct/Nov 2021

Kia ora!

We want to begin by acknowledging the incredibly important work being done within communities and across government during extraordinary circumstances. We are all having to adapt to working within an environment where the settings, policies and expectations are constantly changing, and this creates significant challenges for everyone.

Included this month is a News story summarising recent research about what is needed to support advocate and kaimahi wellbeing, especially during COVID-19. The story includes links to best practice guidelines developed in Australia "Supporting the Wellbeing of Family Violence Workers During Times of Emergency and Crisis" as well as other resources for individuals, managers and workplaces.

We also highlight new research from the 2019 New Zealand Family Violence Study which finds that adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) are associated with a higher risk of reporting poor mental health, chronic physical health conditions or disability in adulthood.

Whichever COVID Alert Level you are in, we hope you and your whānau are safe and well.

Ngā mihi nui ki a koe,
Charlotte and the NZFVC team
